OCCUPYING POWERS PREVENT GERMAN LEGAL PRICE RISE

Despite Oversupply of Money, Also a Scarcity of Goods

DANGER OF INFLATION

Supply of Black Market Transactions Take The Form of Barter

(Following is the fifth in a series of penetrating articles on conditions in Germany called from an official report to OMGUS made by M. S. Szymczak, former city controller of Chicago and until recently economic chief of OMGUS.)

By M. S. SZYMCAZAK

(Member of the Board of Governors of the U. S. Federal Reserve System) (Distributed by I. N. S.)

BERLIN, Aug. 2—(INS)—When the occupying powers entered Germany, the collapse of the currency appeared imminent. Money in circulation had increased to approximately six times the pre-war level.

The German people's recollection of the hyper-inflation that followed the first world war added to the dangers of the situation.

Despite the oversupply of money, the scarcity of goods, the occupying powers took over the existing German system of price and wage controls and have been able to prevent any serious rise in legal prices and wages.

The official cost-of-living index stood in December 1946 at approximately 120 percent of 1938.

It is true that only the meager official rations can be purchased at these prices. The supply of black market transactions take the form of barter, especially for cigarettes rather than the form of sales at high money prices.

The maintenance of the official price and wage level at virtually pre-war figures has had some unforeseen consequences.

At the beginning of the occupation, a military exchange rate of 10 marks per dollar was established, as compared to a pre-war exchange rate of 2½ marks per dollar.

This rate was introduced merely for the administrative use of the occupying authorities, especially in calculating payments in marks to the troops. Its application for general purposes, however, would have tended to upset the entire price and wage system.

German domestic prices even before the war were managed in such a manner that they had lost all relation to world market prices. No union

STORY OF A LAWBREAKER

The Senate War Investigating Committee was told yesterday that on the recommendation of Elliott Roosevelt, who was then a colonel, General Arnold ordered a wartime photo-reconnaissance plane contract awarded to Howard Hughes. The decision was made over the objections of the officer in charge of procurement and the Chief of Air Staff.

General Motors Corporation announced an increase of 2 to 6 per cent in the list prices of all its passenger cars.

As the Air Force celebrated its fortieth anniversary with United States displays of its power, General Spaatz warned that the nation must not confuse a monopoly of atomic bombs with security. He declared security could be assured only by balanced military forces.

At Lake Success, five working groups of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission made public detailed plans for the operation of the proposed international atomic import controls.

The Security Council adopted a resolution urging the Netherlands and the Indonesian Republic to "cease hostilities forthwith" and settle their dispute by arbitration "or by other peaceful means." The vote on the resolution, which repre-

The accident occurred at about 9:30 this morning. Although details are lacking as to how the crash occurred, Rittler is said to have been travelling north on Edgely avenue and proceeding to cross the highway, and Potere was thrown open without a driver.

At noon, the guests from the home will be divided and assigned to the 17 participating congregations for dinner. This invariably is the highlight of the program as far as the children and old folks are concerned. Many congregations spread their dinner at a common table while others subdivide their guests among individual families of the congregation. In addition, the guests usually make the rounds of the amusements at the park at the expense of their respective hosts, to complete what invariably is the biggest day of the year for the wards of the church.

The Rev. William A. Fluck, Hatfield, will be master of ceremonies, and the Hubert family of Perkasie.

Labor and The Election

You are being told that the big issue of this fight is the Taft-Hartley Labor Law, that this law "cruises" and "punishes" labor, that it is a bad law and an unconstitutional law, and that the way to smash it is to vote for a "protest" candidate.

Now, very few people have ever read the law itself, and still fewer understand it. Even the lawyers differ about exactly what it means. No one will know what the law actually does until the courts have ruled on it.

But this much is true about the intention of the law. It tried to do two things: it tried to clip the wings of union officials in calling waves of national strikes which were wrecking the chances of this nation ever getting back on its feet; and it tried to give the members of labor unions a better chance to control what their officials do.

Surely, there is nothing wrong in admitting to yourselves at least, that the labor movement in this country got pretty badly out of hand a few months back. You saw it from one side; those outside the unions saw it from the other — but what they saw was the same thing, and neither those inside the unions nor outside liked all that showed up.

Those on the outside have seen the big-shot labor leaders sit down in smoke-filled rooms and make political deals with men in the national government — and then come out and make those deals stick by forcing you to pay political contributions and cast your family's votes the way they told you to.

They have seen the Communists muscle into the real power behind the throne of one large union after another.

They have seen destructive and needless strikes called, in violation of signed agreements, which threatened to wreck our government, disorganize our country, and throw us all into a sort of national poorhouse.

From your side, you know perfectly well that you have rarely been consulted when these steps were taken by your leaders. They didn't ask your opinions about the political deals they made — you read about them in the newspapers, and then you got your orders what you had to pay and how you had to vote.

You have been called out on strikes in which, after a period of weeks, your leaders announced proudly that they had got you a few cents increase — but when you counted up your losses for the time you were off the payroll, you found that it would take years to make up what the strike had cost you.

You've been ordered out to parades, ordered out to mass-meetings, ordered to write letters and send postcards on matters you weren't interested in. You have been bullied by strong-arm squads when you showed you didn't like the way things were running. You've been given time off to register for elections, and then had to check in and show your cards to a union straw-boss, so they would know you registered.

If you personally haven't gone through this, check up with some of the rest of the bunch, and you'll find plenty who have.

As to running your unions — and they really are YOUR unions, even if your officials sometimes act as though you were just part of the hired help — you know how little real say you have about it. You know how the election rules in the unions tie your hands. You know how little power you have to change the plans which are worked out by the union chiefs.

You know how little success any union membership has had in the last few months even doing so simple a job as driving Communists out of important and lucrative positions in the unions!

This was part of the situation which the Taft-Hartley Act hoped to correct. Perhaps it will. Perhaps it won't.

But don't lose sight of this important fact. Every bit of propaganda against the Labor Act which you have been given was handed out by the labor big-shots — and they are the wild horses whom the new law hoped to put a bridle on! No wonder they aren't in favor! But their interests, and your interests, are not the same. Before you pass final judgment on the act, find out whether it HELPS OR HURTS THE RANK AND FILE OF LABOR-UNION MEMBERSHIP!

At any event, the law has been passed. It's on the statute books. And it's there not only because the Republican Party favored it, but also because more than half the Democrats in Congress voted to override their President's veto of the bill. Very few laws ever passed Congress with stronger backing.

What's the next step. When a law is passed, the duty of all those who believe in orderly government, who uphold the Constitution, who don't want to see the country turned into a riot on a national scale, is perfectly plain. They try to obey the law; and after the courts have determined exactly what it means, they seek through legal and orderly processes to have it amended, if it operates to the disadvantage of any group in our social structure.

The attempt by certain labor leaders, few of whom ever lived in Bucks or Lehigh Counties, and still fewer of whom ever expect to live here, to turn this election into a defiant protest of the statutes — to make it a law-busting campaign — is both novel and dangerous.

Do you believe in law and order? Do you believe in government? Do you believe in "equal justice" — equal for the labor leader as well as for everyone else? Do you believe a man has a right to make up his own mind whom he is going to support in politics? Do you believe in the home-rule principle that it is the right of the people who live in a Congressional District to choose their own Congressmen — without interference of carpetbaggers from outside?

If you believe in these things, as surely all good Americans do, then there is just one way that you can vote to uphold them.

That is to make good use of the secrecy and privacy of the polling booth, and on election day to vote for the Republican candidate who upholds those principles, and to vote against the man running as a Democrat whose campaign has been turned into a drive to destroy them.

Were they puny, weak, ailing? No. They have better physique than average, better health, a lower death rate.

Were they anti-social, queer, unable to get along with people? There's no indication of it. There are fewer bachelors and spinsters among them than among other college graduates of the same age. They tend to be at least as happily married as non-prodigies and to have no greater proportion of divorces.

Did they "fizzle out" under the test of adult achievement? Far from it. They do well in college, succeed in professional jobs. The average income of the men in this group is $4,700 a year — hardly spectacular, but not bad at 35. Twenty of the group are already listed in Who's Who or American Men of Science.

The popular illusions about child prodigies are more apt to be true about children unnaturally forced by ambitious parents into precocious achievements in a narrow field. Short-pants prodigies in music, mathematics, chess, Latin and so on more often show the effects of psychological strain when they grow up. But simply having brains is no handicap.

DEMOCRAT NINE MOVES NEARER TO THIRD PLACE

Hiboes" Defeated; Democrat Club is Within One-Half Game of 3rd Place

FINAL SCORE IS 6 TO 3

It Was Well Played Until Last Half of Seventh Inning

The Democrat Club moved to within one-half game of third place in the second division of the Bristol Suburban League last evening as it defeated the Hibernians, 6-3, before a large crowd on Leedom's field.

The tilt was well-played until the last half of the seventh inning when the "Hibs" made a few misuses and before the frame was over the Democrats with the aid of timely hitting scored four times. The Hibernians were leading, 3-2, before the uprising.

A walk to "Sonny" Fields, singles by Vince DiTanna and H. Keyes plus three errors and a sacrifice gave the Democrats their quartet of tallies.

The losing hurler was Stevenson who like the winner, Bob Norris, gave up five hits. "Vince" DiTanna and "Tommy" Stewart each had two blows to lead the batters.

The Hiboes took the lead by scoring a pair of markers in the first on walks to Killian and Johnson and a two-bagger by Stewart. Killian's walk, an error and single by Stewart accounted for the other Hib's run.

Two errors and a single by Mead gave the Democrats a couple of tallies in the fourth.

FIGHTERS FAIL TO APPEAR FOR BOUTS

Fighters of several of the boxing clubs, scheduled to appear at the St. Ann's Arena, failed to show up last night with the result that it was impossible to complete a card of eight bouts. As the result, Matchmaker Moffo arranged for three matches which were fought without charge to the public. Tickets purchased for last night will be honored at the next show.

In a three-round bout, Johnny Ernst, of Croydon, won the decision over Edward Warnilo, of the Shackamaxon Club. In this bout, the fans saw practically everything that shouldn't be in a bout.

The first bout ended in a technical knockout for Harry Ery, of the 26th Police district of Phila.

In the final bout of the night, Alexander Wade, of the 39th Police District of Phila., lost the decision to Gandhi Barksdale, of the 36th Police District.

books, preparing material for oral reports to their study groups, and writing reports of work which they have been doing in their schools. Of the 52 districts in the county only nine held their meetings during school hours, nine began in the latter part of the school day and ran an hour after school hours, and twenty-four held their meetings after school entirely. Three districts held no meetings and seven have not reported.

The Bucks County School Board Association, at its meeting on June 25, accepted report of a plan to facilitate the curriculum program by encouraging school districts to establish a 185-day term. Thus the 180 days of teaching time required by law would be provided, and the five additional days could be allocated for half-day local study meetings, for area or county-wide meetings, and for a visiting day in which teachers could observe outstanding work being done in other schools.

In a number of districts teachers had already requested their school boards to make some such arrangement. Since teachers are now paid an annual, rather than a monthly, salary, this professional-study time would be considered a part of the school year, and teachers could carry on the curriculum work when they were not fatigued, and would not find it necessary to devote evenings and week-ends to it.

With the very excellent start already made, and with teachers' participation facilitated and extended by this new plan, the coming school year should produce rich growth in Bucks county's program, and enable the county to make outstanding contributions to the materials being collected by the Department of Public Instruction for publication and for state-wide distribution.

form exchange rate, and least of all the military rate, would represent a generally applicable ratio between domestic prices as expressed in marks, and world market prices in dollars.

Thus, a difficult problem has arisen in connection with the pricing of export and import goods.

The German exporter receives for his sales the legal domestic price in marks. Similarly, the German importer has to pay for his purchases the legal domestic price in marks.

On the other hand, the foreign importer of German goods pays, and the foreign exporter of goods receives the world market price in dollars.

Therefore, the occupation authorities have decided for the time being to refrain from fixing a uniform conversion into dollar prices, and vice-versa.

Instead we have issued a long list of various conversion factors, reflecting for all major commodities the actual relation between legal and domestic prices in marks and world market prices in dollars.

For instance, the conversion factor for carbon brushes is 30 cents, and for pharmaceuticals 80 cents per mark.

This means that a certain quantity of carbon brushes that sells domestically for 100 marks has to be priced for export at $30, but pharmaceuticals that sell domestically for 100 marks have to be priced for export at $80.

As a practical matter, this is the best that can be done until major monetary reforms are undertaken in Germany and a more normal price system is developed there.

These problems have been under quadrupartite (four zones) discussion for some time and it is to be hoped that an early agreement will be reached.

In December 1946, military government established a new central banking organization (on land) in the American zone.

Following the principle of decentralization each German state received its own central bank, which took over the assets of the former Reichsbank as far as they were located in its area.

Total assets of the banks in the American zone were 75 billion marks on June 30, 1946, of which one-third was kept in cash or bank balances, and two-fifths in treasury bills and other government securities.

The organization of the central banks was largely influenced by the model of the Federal Reserve System. As soon as the economic unification of Germany is implemented, the state central banks will be co-ordinated by a central board, which will issue currency through the medium of the state central banks.

Until such time, however, the central banks have no power to issue bank notes or any other currency.

In consequence of our principle of decentralization, commercial banks in the American zone have been ordered to sever their connection with central offices in Berlin.

Depositors are free, however, to dispose of their accounts both within the American and in transactions with the British and French zones, except for blocking measures applied in the process of denazification.

From the beginning of occupation to the end of 1946, deposits in the American zone increased by 75 percent.

Most of the rise in deposits has to be kept by the banks in cash or with other credit institutions since no other investment opportunities are available.
